RUSSIA BUYING AMERICAN COAL.

First Shipment of a Million-Ton Order Sailed Yesterday From Norfolk, Va.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

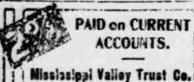

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 4.—The chartered Brittish steamship Frendene, Captain Jones, sailed yesterday for Port Arthur with 6,000 tons of Pocahontas coal, consigned to the Russian Government. This is the first shipment of what is said to be a million-ton contract. The coal company will not deny or affirm the story that Russia has contracted for a million tons. Baron Fersen, he Russian naval attache at Washington, was here to see the first cargo off.

He intimated that the coal may be used for "experimental purposes," but it is known that this cargo will be distributed among a fleet of Russian warships. As soon as other chartered ships can arrive they will be loaded with coal for the Russian navy. There may be much significance in this contract for American coal, in preference to the coal formerly purchased from Erglish firms. A gentleman in close touch with the Russian Government is reported to have remarked that "Russia, for reasons best known to herself, has ceased to buy her coal from England."

The Frendene's cargo of 5,000 tons is an unusually large one, and was loaded as rapidly as the facilities at Lambert's Point permitted.

"The Thrush," Devoted to Poetry, Appears to Be a Doubtful Success.

MYSTERY ABOUT LOVE LETTERS

Wild Guesses at Identity of the Book Cause Publishers to Be Plagued by Seekers After Literary Fame.

SPECIAL BY CABLE. London, Jan. 4 - (Copyright, 1901, by the New York Herald Company.)-Dull as has seen the past book season, dull as it remains, dull as is the outlook, there is little lacking in the issue of new magazines, I spoke last week of that novel venture magazine poetry called "The Thrush." It is out now, It is pininly got up. The editor is just hopeful for the new publica tion, without being overconfident, now that the mass and million of people are able to read. He says that the time may be ripe for the issue of poetry in a popular form, at a price within the means of the poor-

"There are signs of the awakening of people to the appreciation of things of joy and beauty," he says.

So the Thrush hopes to introduce many readers to the companionship of the poets of the new century. Unfortunately, the things of joy and beauty do not seem, so far as I can gather, to appeal to very many, As the editor of one of the most popular magazines of the present day—a nan, too, who is no mean poet himself-said to me only yesterday:

"Poetry is all very well in a magazine if it be good poetry, but we live in a most unpoetic age. While I always like to have a few nice verses to print every month, I find, as a rule, that if the poem runs beyond a page it is not appreciated."

Another of the new century's prospective literary children is the Lady's Magazine, of which I have just seen an advance copy, for it will not be published till next week. Certainly it is a most promising paper, but, of course, nothing unreadable comes from the hands of C. Arthur Pearson & Co. Lady Hodgson gives an account of her experiences through the slege of Kumasi; Mme, Sarah Grand contributes recollections of her school days. There are two strong items in the paper, one on a domestic sub-ject by the late Mrs. William Ewart Giadstone, and the first installment of Mr. Hall Caine's new novel, "The Eternal City." There is no lack of interest taken in the efforts to ascertain the author of that thrilling and heartrending book, "An Eng-lish Woman's Love Letters." Some of the wildest and most absurd guesses have found their way into print. The latest is that the letters are the work of the lady who writes as George Egerton, but, as she is at present in Scandinavia, she is unable to deny the statement for several days, the result being that it is gaining wide curpered about literary circles an amazing guess at a humorist, who has done and may wish to do again some striking seri-ous work. The real fact of the matter is that the name of the writer is known only to three persons, a number small enough to make the secret fairly safe. Eventually, ro doubt, it will come out. By the way, the mysterious author is contributing an article to the next number of a monthly review. Another result of the great success of the by new unknown writers to publish their untried work anonymously, all in the hope, of course, that the public curlosity to dis-cover their identity may bring them fame. So far the publishers' announcements con-tain nothing about the issue of any more anonymous love letters.

NEWS NOTES ABOUT BOOKS AND WRITERS.

It is said that the redoubtable Major Pond has again being trying to induce the equally redoubtable Mr. Kipling to come over here to lecture. The first attempt was made several years ago. Evidently the Major beleves that sufficient time has elapsed for Mr. Kipling to change his mind. He set forth his reasons magnificently in his first letter to Major Pond, a passage of which rend as follows: "There is such a thing as paying one hundred and twenty-five cents for a dollar, and though I suppose there is money in the lecturing business, it seems to me that the bother, the fuss, the being at everybody's beck and call, the night juorneys, and so on, make it very dear. I have seen a few men who lived through the fight, but they did not look happy." Although the new volume in the Story of the West Series edited by Ripley Hitchcock deals particularly with "The Story of the Soldier" in the West, it is, nevertheless, as the author, General G. A. Forsyth, intended it to be, an actual biography of the United States Regular Army. A little thought will show that this treatment of the subject was inevitable, owing to the constant field of service in which the army has been conspicuous since the Revolutionary War.

"The Individual; A Study of Life and Death," by Professor N. S. Shaler, published by D. Appleton & Co., is being criticised in religious circles principally on the ground that it does not give separate human beings the individuality writings in the Bible show they possess. On this point, however, there is no mistaking what the Harvard professor would intimate, for he says clearly in his preface:
"It is a protest against the idea, bred of many natural misconceptions, that a human being is something apart from its fel-lows; that it is born into the world and dies out of it into the loneliners of a super-natural realm. It is this sense of isolation which, more than all else, is the curse of life and the sting of death."

Seventy-five thousand copies of F. Marion Crawford's new novel, "In the Palace of the King," have been sold since its publication a month ago.

"Perverseness is a force to be reckoned with in all original characters" is one of the sayings found in "Alice of Old Vincennes."

Emile Zola's latest novel, "Labor," powerful narrative dealing with factory life in France and with the conflict between labor and capital in that country, will begin its run as a serial in Harper's Weekly early in the new year. It will probably appear in book form some time next summer.

The February number of Everybody's Magazine will contain an article entitled "The Curiosities of Courage," by Richard Harding Davis. The same number will also present the first of a series of articles by "J. P. M.," which will be called "The Making of a Home." The author of these sketches, who presents the results of his own experience, shows that it is by no means necessary to be wealthy in order to prove a measure country place of once one enjoy a pleasant country place of one's own

Half a million copies of "David Harum" have already been sold, and the sules still average 500 copies a day. The calls for the illustrated edition are at present greater than can be supplied by the publishers.

Three new volumes to the Macmillan Cempany's edition of Fenimore Cooper's novels will be added shortly after the Christmas "The Pathfinder," They are "Prairie," and "The Pioneers." Each has twenty-five illustrations. The first two volumes are illustrated by C. E. Brock and "The Pioneers" by H. M. Brock.

The first of a series of memoirs by Clara Morris appears in the January number of the McClure Magazine. There is also a striking pen picture of the German Kalser, while the second installment of Kipling's "Kim" appears with illustrations by Edwin Lord Weeks and Lockwood Kipling.

The Century for January presents extracts from a diary kept during the siege of the foreign legations in Pekin last summer by Cecil E. Payen, which cover the more thrilling incidents of the experiences of the legationers from a woman's point of Thackeray's daughter is writing again—a series of essays this time, dealing with charming, but forgotten, books. She calls them Blackstick Papers, after the good fairy in her father's inimitable little tale, "The Rose and the Ring."

The vagaries of authors in the matter of dress are well known. Surely none was so odd as Balzac, who, if a paragraph in the English Onlooker may be credited, insisted on having his working trousers made with-out openings for the feet, so that he could sit and write in them without having to put on slippers.

This number of the Ledger Monthly, the first number of the new year, 1901, con-tains new and attractive features which tender it more interesting and valuable than ever before. There is a greater amount of useful information and a larger amount of useful information and a larger diversity of articles on topics interesting to women. A new department, entitled "The First Necessities of Good Housekeeping." by Cornella C. Bedford, will be found especially interesting to housekeepers.

Together with the theory that malaria is Together with the theory that malaria is transmitted by mosquitoes, the theory that flies are conveyances of typhold germs is of particular interest. Decier L. O. Howard, United States Department of Agriculture, writes on "Flies and Typhold Fever" in the January number of Popular Science Monthly.

WARNED TO AVOID ST. LOUIS.

Larceny Charge Against Harry Twinkler Is Dismissed.

Harry Twinkler, alias Glatt, arrested here on a charge of picking a man's pocket in the Olympic Theatter, has shaken the dust of St. Louis from his shoes. J. F. Freeman, general attorney for the Texas Pacific Railroad, the prosecuting witness, was summoned several times to appear in court, but he failed to prosecute, and yesterday the case was continued generally.

Detectives Killian and Murphy were detailed to arrest Twinkler as soon as he left court. Twinkler realized their object, and calmly seated himself in the courtroom, knowing that the officers could not take him in custody as long as he was under the protection of the court.

Killian sat beside Twinkler and told him he would remain there until court adjourned if it were necessary, in order to make the arrest. Twinkler, seeing it was useless to hold out longer, submitted to arrest. Chief Desmond elicited from him a promise to quit St. Louis forever, and then turned him loose to cross the bridge, telling him if he is again caught in St. Louis it will go hard with him.

VERDICT OF MANSLAUGHTER. Margaret Storts Held for the Death of Lena Plate.

of Lena Plate.

Mrs. Margaret Storts of No. 1190 Clark avenue, was held on a verdict of mansiaughter at the inquest yesterday on the body of Mrs. Lena Plate, who died on December 31, in Mrs. Storts's house. After the inquest the police conducted her back to the detention ward at the Four Courts, where she has been held since her arrest on New Year's Day.

Lena Plate, who was the wife of, Henry Plate, a carpenter, living at No. 3125 California avenue, went to Mrs. Storts's house on December 26. Mr. Plate declares he did not know of his wife's whereabours until he read of her death in the newspapers. Then he found her body at the Morgue.

The evidence showed that she died on the afternoon of December 31. On the following afternoon, the dead wagon was called to convey the body to the Morgue.

Coroner Funkhouser found that "death was caused by septic peritonitis due to an operation—verdict: "Mansiaughter." Attorney Brock Storts, a son of the midwife, sat beside his mother in the course of the inquest to advise her. She will be held by the police to await the action of Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Johnson.

WILL PAY DEATH CLAIMS ONLY. Comment on New Order to Succeed Chosen Friends.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Indianapolis, Jan. 4.—Doctor Henry Jamison and T. G. R. Herrel of this city have returned from New York with the information that a new order has been formed out of the fragmentary, members of the defunct Order of Chosen Friends. They say that the new order will do away with disability benefits and pay death claims only. The maximum amount of insurance to be allowed all members under 15 years of age is $1,000; between 55 and 65, $2,900, and all above the latter age, $1,000.

Supreme officers have been named and comfortable salaries provided. There is considerable comment about the affair in this city because organization was not attempted in Indiana, where many citizens agree with Auditor Hart in thinking that the Order of Chosen Friends should not be resuscitated in any form.

MACDONALD IS HUMILIATED.

British Ambassador Becomes Consul General.

SPECIAL BY CABLE. SPECIAL BY CABLE.

London, Jan. 4.—(Copyright, 1991, by W. R. Hearst.)—British society in Tokio, the capital of Japun, is said to have a new leader in the person of Lady MacDonald, wife of Sir Claude MacDonald, who has been appointed Consul General.

The appointment is, however, a humiliation to Sir Claude, who was recently removed from Fekin, where he had been Amhassador during the trying siege. This is the first instance on record where an Ambassador has been relegated to a consulship.

NEGRO HERMIT FOUND DEAD.

Had Lived Apart From His Fellows for Twenty-Five Years.

Jeff Stuart, a negro hermit, 90 years old, living eight miles from Glencoe, in St. Louis County, on Wild Horse Creek, was found dead in his cabin yesterday morning. For some reason the old man avoided his fellow-beings, and is not known to have associated with any of his kind for the last twenty-five years. He lived entirely by himself, and was some times not seen for days. It is not known how long he had been dead when the body was found.

ACCIDENTS IN ZINC MINES.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Joplin, Mo., Jan. 4.—George O'Neil, Charley Hammick and J. W. Greech, three miners, narrowly escaped being bolled to death in the First National Mine yesterday. The men had gone into the dump, where they were starting a drift. They had been there but a short time when the steam was turned on for the drill. The men immediately Jerkod the alarm cord, but in their excitement pulled it too hard, for it broke, leaving them without any means of giving an alarm or any way of escape. They called for help repeatedly, but none came. The place became so hot that it was almost intolerable. The men at short intervals continued to call, and finally, after they had been in this terrible place for over an hour, one of the men heard their cry for help, went to their rescue and brought them, fainting and half conscious, to the too.

To-day an accident occurred at the Chapman Mine near Gaiena. Several shots were prepared and exploded and Dan Scanland, the ground boss; Tom Childress and John Gates went back to go to work. Other miners warned the men that there was danger. As they approached a shot exploded and the three men were badly injured. Scanland's eyes were blown out, his ness torn from his face and the flesh on both cheeks torn so that both cheek ones were exposed. Childress's injuries are not so severe, but the flesh on his face was literally cut in ribbons and his body was badly lacerated. Gates was in the rear and was not badly hurt. His face was filled with line gravel and his body bruised to some extent. The injured men were hoisted to the surface and medical aid summoned. It is not known whether any of the injured men are fatally wounded, but Scanland will be left without sight.
